CLIMATE CHANGE

ART COMPETITION

WHAT WE ARE DOING

In partnership with Wessex Museums, Dorset Museum has been working with various groups of children and young people to discover, explore and learn about the impact of climate change and threats to our environment.

We are hoping to collect the work these groups have produced including their research and artistic responses and to include their art in our collection for future.

PRIZE

- Your art shown online and on display in the museum for all to see!
- A family annual pass to the Museum

Winner and runners up are announced on 12 November at Dorset Museum.

Remember the deadline is the 5 November so be quick!

THE CHALLENGE

We want YOU to create a piece of art related to climate change or the environment.

It could be a painting, a drawing, a sculpture or whatever you can come up with just make sure it tells us a message about climate change or protecting our environment.

Please could you also write a small piece of text to explain what your art means and why the message is important along with your name and age.
